BE NICE....

It is that time of year again.....Sickness season. Bleh! Please use common sense in preventing the spread of germs to the best of YOUR ability. Cough/sneeze into the crook of your arm. Don't be judgmental if someone is wearing a mask. You don't know their circumstance. Nor do you need to - just be KIND!!!

Twas The Night Before Christmas In Old Shaniko

Written and submitted by reader, Debra Holbrook

T'was the night before Christmas in old Shaniko.
Not a creature was stirring, it was 40 below!
The stockings on clotheslines were soon ripped to shreds.
The townsfolk were wrapped up and shivering in beds.

The children in town knew that it was the end.
If the storm didn't stop they would never see friends,
Let alone have a visit from jolly Saint Nick.
If he came from the West, he'd be blown to Myrick.

Out on the roofs, there arose a great clatter,
And clunking and bumping of shingle-like matter,
Went sailing away to the northeast so fast,
We caught our breaths quick for the next coming blast.

It wasn't the prancing and pawing that comes,
With the gift-laden sleigh on the Christmas Eve run,
That was heard up above, on each roof of the town.
Or was it??...the wind had suddenly died down.

Waiting and listening, each holding their breath,
Not knowing whether to be scared to death,
A shingle or two had just settled in place,
The snow was now falling at an incredible pace.

It quickly blanketed the whole of the town,
But no one was going to be wearing a frown.
The kids would be happy tomorrow to do,
A few snowmen named Frosty, or Leroy or Lew.

By mid-afternoon when the turkey was done,
And the presents were opened and other such fun.
The table would be filled with wonders delight,
Such as stuffing and pies and other such sights.

The tastes and the smells would be such a treat,
During football the men would be picking their teeth.
While the women were washing the dishes and such,
The few children in town would come in with a rush.

Shouting about the sleigh bells they just heard,
And the slushing and shushing that stirred up the birds.
It was nothing but big trucks speeding through town
With their chains on while making their wintry rounds.

With the holiday over, and more winter to come,
Each would think about beaches and getting some sun
In Hawaii, the Bahamas, or ole' Mexico,
Anything to get out of the wind and the snow.

But then in a twinkling the thought was all gone,
No one wanted to leave the town they're so fond.
So goodnight one and all as the nighttime draws near,
Merry Christmas to all, and to all, peace and good cheer!

Historic short stories about Oregon's famous ghost town, Shaniko. Fun and informational "corner". ~ Submitted by Debra Holbrook

Happy Holidays Past: Antelope 1895

In January of 1896, The Dallas Weekly Chronicle reported holiday happenings from the Antelope community in December of 1895. In the column, "News Notes From Antelope" we learned that at the big hall (Duram's Hall) there were several activities executed. This was a long and large building that stood where the post office is now. Today the very old building next door was the Dial Saloon. In the early evening there were the traditional Christmas offerings of the holiday, the colored wax candles on a tree, Santa Claus came bearing gifts for the children, and the program that included singing of songs was presented.

After the program by the school children and staff concluded, a dance commenced that was held as a fundraiser for the minister of the town. The music was, "well rendered and appropriate." The community had a bad windstorm that week, a funeral, and some disruption in the school by late night use, that found books missing, creating an investigation to try and find the guilty persons.

The boss placed a sign directly over the sink in the restroom at work. It had a single word on it: THINK!

The next day when the boss went in the restroom, he saw another sign had been placed immediately above the soap dispenser. It read: THOAP!

One evening I was commenting on my bad exercise habits and tight clothes. Whenever I criticize myself, my 4-year-old son always has something charming to say.

Using a new word, he smiled and said, "Oh, no, Mommy! You look FLABulous!"
